

LESSON PLANNING FOR THE INTREPID TEACHER

There is a tarantula in Vancouver that has visited more classrooms than the most avid school volunteer. The tarantula is one of more than 300 creatures in the menagerie of Gary Oliver, President of Cinemazoo, a company that is a combination casting agency and educational institution for the animal world. Oliver, a former fashion photographer, makes over 250 presentations per year. Whether working with a preying mantis or an elephant, his objective "is to provide people of all ages with a better understanding and appreciation for animals." The picture above shows Oliver and Lorraine Couture, a teacher at Our Lady of Fatima School, meeting some of Oliver's friends.
